OPINION AND COMMENT

THE A. & M. GAME CANCELLED While the resident committee appointed by the alumni have no defence to make in regard to the cancellation of the A. & M. game, a statement is due both them and the alumni. It is not the policy of the University to rush into hot print, however strong the pull to reply. She takes her stand calmly for what she thinks is right and unmoved by blame lets bitterness run its own course.

It is common knowledge that athletic relations were severed with A. & M. College eight years ago on account of the unfairness caused by the difference in eligibility rules. This difference kept the two institutions apart until last year. For several years there has been a strong demand in the State that the two institutions get together. With the change in athletic management coming as a result of the renewed interest of the alumni last spring, the demand for athletic contests with A. & M. became successful. Even then there were many people, members of our faculty and of the A. & M. faculty as well, friends of both institutions, who thought such a step not only unwise but impracticable. With faith that the two institutions could get together on a basis of fair sportsmanship, and in a spirit of friendly rivalry, Manager McLendon was authorized to have a conference with the A. & M. authorities to this end.

Into the consideration of the question went three differences in the eligibility requirements of the two institutions: the summer ball rule, the paid assistants rule and the five months rule. A. & M. bars organized league players and permits men to play who play summer ball for money above expenses outside an organized league. Carolina bars organized league players and also all others who play any sort of summer ball for money above expenses. In order to meet A. & M. more than half way, Carolina agreed to keep her own summer ball rule and waive A. & M.'s advantage on this point. A. & M. permits men to play who may be on the payroll of the college as assistants. Carolina, while not denying to athletes the right of self-help open to all students on this distinctly self-help campus, forbids them to receive money from the University in any salaried capacity whatever. Out of courtesy to A. & M.'s captain, who is a salaried assistant, Carolina made a second concession in the interest of a friendly renewal of relations and waived A. & M.'s second advantage. Then the third difference came up for consideration - the five months rule. The A. & M. management gave the Carolina management to understand that there was no difference on this point as A. & M. did not have men to violate the five months rule. Satisfied as to this point, and with such an understanding, the Carolina management signed the contract which left to each college the enforcement of its own eligibility rules.

The fall comes and with the fall from east and west come men who violate not the letter of the contract but the spirit of the renewal and the understanding on Carolina's part out of which the contract grew. It is not for Carolina to say that A. & M. has broken faith, rather she would say that there has been a mutual misunderstanding on a material point.

At the time of the contract the A. & M. management did not think there would be any occasion for the five months rule. Carolina felt that if the occasion did arise A. & M. would make the five months rule one of her own standards without reference to a contract. As soon as it was learned that A. & M. had men on the team ineligible under a five months rule the chairman of the athletic committee and the graduate manager of athletics made personal visits to A. & M. with the hope of saving the game on a basis of fairer standards. The A. & M. management insisted that these men could play under the contract and that they did not regard the statement by A. & M. that there was no necessity for such a rule at A. & M. as a part of the agreement. The A. & M. committee gave as their final answer that they would play the game under the letter of the contract or not at all.

By this time the newspapers of the State had begun to publish notices of a disagreement. The student bodies of both institutions were getting excited over it. The Carolina committee felt that to play the game under such circumstances would defeat the very purpose for which athletic relations were renewed: to create a healthy spirit of sportsmanship and inter-collegiate rivalry. So the committee who have borne the brunt of the responsibility with patient sincerity decided that it was best to call the game off.

EXCHANGE PROFESSORSHIPS Recognition of a very pleasing sort has just come to the University through the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace in that it has been designated as one of six American universities to be visited during the winter by Dr. Sosuke Sato, Japanese Exchange Professor from the University of Tohoku, Japan. The other institutions to be visited in this capacity by Dr. Sato, are Johns Hopkins, Columbia and Brown universities and the State universities of Illinois and Minnesota. The American representative to Japan last year was Dr. Hamilton Wright Mabie.

In this connection it is to be recalled that Dr. C. Alphonso Smith was a member of the University faculty when he was appointed Roosevelt Professor to the University of Berlin, and that this year Leonard Charles Van Noppen, of the class of 1892, is Queen Wilhelmina Lecturer at Columbia University.

THE TYPICAL STUDENT Particular attention is directed to NORTH CAROLINA the report made by Acting President Graham on University Day in which he presented to the State a significant statement of the inner life of the University. As is strikingly set forth in the report, the University is not primarily or even secondarily given over to the development of athletes. On the contrary, the typical University student places his emphasis just where he should place it, on study, religion, and self-government. These are his outstanding interests and the University makes it its chief purpose that the typical student shall find full development in these fundamentals.

UNIVERSITY DAY

Addresses by Acting President Graham, Dr. Henderson, and Secretary-of-the-Navy Daniels Strikingly Portray the Spirit of the Students, the University, and North Carolinians Generally

The one hundred and twentieth birthday of the University, made notable by a fine spirit of optimism, was splendidly celebrated on Saturday morning, October 11th, with student body, faculty, alumni, guests and visitors entering enthusiastically into every part of the celebration, while from President Venable and sons of the University far and near came messages of love and good will to speed alma mater on her way of splendid achievement.

The outstanding features of the day, the formal exercises of which began at 10:45 in Memorial Hall, were the report of Acting President Graham, the addresses of Dr. Henderson and Secretary of the Navy Daniels, and—it may well be recorded here—the procession of students, by far and away the largest that ever marched from the Alumni Building to Memorial Hall, and which, when assembled before Mr. Daniels, elicited from him the remark that it was the finest sight he had ever seen.

ACTING PRESIDENT GRAHAM'S REPORT

Following the Invocation by Dr. W. R. L. Smith and the singing of the University Hymn, Acting President Graham presented to the people of the State an inspiring report on student life and University activities. He said in part:

"It is customary at this annual celebration of the founding of the University for the president to make a brief report to the people of the State on internal conditions of the University. Today, on our one hundred and twentieth birthday, in the absence of President Venable, who has done so much to put the institution in the proud position which it now holds, it becomes my pleasant duty to make this report.

"On behalf of the faculty and students, therefore, I joyfully render to the State our account of the beginning of the University's new year, not boastfully, but with a happy confidence that the sure foundation of sympathetic co-operation, alert, resourceful, responsible effort that has indelibly marked the beginning will make the year a notable one in the long history of the college.

"The registration has now reached 871. This exceeds the total number ever registered in the whole of any year by 34. There are over 100 more students here now than at any one time before, and this, notwithstanding the fact that the requirements for entrance have been rigidly enforced; and the fact that this year, for the first time, upperclassmen who failed to pass as many as nine hours have not been allowed to register. Our registration in the academic department exceeds that of any other Southern college except the University of Texas, which is co-educational. The University plant has been in active operation the whole twelve months of the year with the exception of seven weeks, and by the end of the year instruction will have been given to over 1,400 students—including the 500 teachers in the summer school.

"In addition to those taught directly here on the campus, the faculty has recently undertaken so to extend its activities as to reach as far as possible, every home within the State. We hope through our recently organized Bureau of Extension to make the campus co-extensive with the boundaries of the State, and while keeping the standards of University instruction and scholarly research on the highest plane, to put the University as head of the State's educational system in warm sensitive touch with every problem in North Carolina life, small and great. We believe that no civilization ever presented more interesting questions than does our own at this moment, and that the opportunities for intelligent, sympathetic leadership were never more varied and inspiring. We are undertaking this extension work as a modest proposal of what we hope will become a tremendous force in State life, and as an indication of our desire to co-operate actively with every force in the upbuilding of the State.

"But I turn from the interesting thought of the extension of the scope of University influence, and extension in numbers, to the immediate matter of the internal student life of the institution. More important than the number of students on a campus is the question as to what they are doing there. And if one should judge from the moving picture presented in the papers from day to day of what college students are busy with, he might be inclined to think that the whole student world is a great football field, just as he might imagine that New York city has dissolved into a gigantic Polo Grounds. Such a superficial judgment is not the fault of the students or the papers; if there be any fault, it is in the reading public.

"That our students are interested in football is, of course, a fact that we gladly acknowledge. They are interested also in every other healthful expression of active, vigorous, young manhood. They have all of the interests of twenty-year-old twentieth century Americans. Football happens to be a powerful one of these; but it is emphatically not the main interest of the University of North Carolina student. He is much more aggressive, and his success is far greater in activities other than athletics. Our athletic record is sadly eloquent testimony that our students do not play as aggressively as they work, or as they speak, when put in competition with their sister colleges.

"Those of us who know North Carolina students know that far from playing too much, they do not, as a rule, play enough. Sport is not their mood, and the reason is clear enough: they come from an environment of which the spirit of play has formed a negligible part. Their attitude toward work is the seriously minded temper of North Carolina as it emerges from its long battle for economic freedom. They come from families not quite able to send them to college. They are conscious of the fact that they are in college as the result of loving self-sacrifice. They know the values of self-sacrifice, not merely as a vision revealed to them in an unforgotten home; but from the stern fact of their own struggle to get here and stay here. And struggle with all its rich and patient compensations has left its heavy shadow on the life of our student group.

"Although it is somewhat unfortunate that we do not have more of the spirit of play than we do have, I rejoice that the main interest of our students is precisely where it should be: in their college work. Any other condition would be intolerable in the University of a democratic state. Our attendance records are carefully kept, and Mr. Stacy and I have compared these records—a sort of thermometer of student seriousness—with those of other high grade institutions wherever available, and the comparisons have never shown us at a disadvantage.

"This record of serious attention to required duties is borne out by the three outstanding voluntary activities in the life of the average North Carolina student that show his true nature and genius. They are his interests in debating, in religion, and in self-government.

"The two literary societies have initiated this year about 150 new members. They have a joint membership of about four hundred. I doubt if there is an institution in the country where debating societies so vigorous and successful are maintained year after year, by voluntary membership and under entirely independent student control. The record of success that they have steadily maintained through fifteen years of intercollegiate debating is higher testimony than I can pay to the nature of the work of the societies. They have won 25 out of 35 intercollegiate debates with colleges of the highest rank. They have won eleven of the last twelve. The highest college honor in the eyes of the typical University student is to represent the college in an intercollegiate debate.

"Going to church is as voluntary as the playing of games, and it is apparently a vast deal more popular. The four churches of the town have Bible classes on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, in which some 250 students are in attendance; at the regular services which follow the churches are filled; the Y. M. C. A. Bible classes at 12:30 have 175 in actual attendance. The association holds two week-day meetings every week, which are largely attended—one led by a member of the faculty and the other by a student. It conducts five Sunday schools in the country around Chapel Hill throughout the whole college year. It conducts classes in the negro Sunday schools of the town. It has a membership of about 100. I give these details of fact merely for the purpose of providing the leading features for a composite picture of the typical North Carolina student. His religious activities are of the alert, genuinely interested sort that express themselves when normal young men freely catch sight of the higher visions of life.

"The work of the societies and of the association and the minor activities of the campus are a part of a great underlying activity—a slowly evolving system of self-government—that is perhaps the greatest pride and the highest achievement of the University student community. The effort to produce effective machinery of government and a community sense of righteousness high and compelling, has had its reverses, and it is likely to have them in the future; but the actual result achieved is a real and noble triumph; a community that governs itself so well and has established so fixedly high standards of personal conduct that its leaders do not have to occupy themselves with repressive and punitive legislation, but are left to lead in constructive development and co-operative progress.

"This state of mind on the campus, the product of the slow, but steady progress of many years, is the aim of all democratic government, and is the only atmosphere in which education can achieve those creative results and produce those finer issues that are its supreme justification in the life of men. It is the attitude that will make the year on which we have so fairly entered realize the hopes and prayers of the people of North Carolina for the college that they love."

Declaring that under its scheme of educational extension now offered to the State, the University was preparing to go forth, in response to the needs of a new age, to mingle with the people and to touch with a transforming hand their life, Dr. Henderson, in speaking of "The University in the Nation," went further and indicated the kind of service the University was rendering to the nation.

"Such an educational service," he said, "bids fair to become, not local, but national in its significance. In a true sense it is described as university extension; for it is but an extension of the truly national service to education already abundantly rendered by this institution, and its alumni. Battle, Alderman, Aycock, Melver, Joyner, and their younger compeers, Graham, Johnston, Horne—and many other names familiar to us all, have rendered, and are now rendering incomparable service in the incubation of the national ideals and the moulding of national character.

"In that supreme branch of service to which all higher education is ultimately dedicated—the service to truth—this university is now accomplishing work of national calibre and international range. In pure science, in economics, in medicine, in all the branches of a sound and varied learning, the scholars of this institution by their independent researches, their creative contributions, touch today, as never before in our history, the national consciousness, and serve that jealous mistress, truth, with a fidelity which has won the approbation of American and even of world-scholarship."

NORTH CAROLINA SPIRIT

Secretary of the Navy Daniels, who was given an ovation by the audience when presented by Acting President Graham as "a North Carolinian who has loved his State with a tender, passionate devotion," spoke on the "North Carolina Spirit."

This he found to be different from that of any other State with which he had come in contact. He discussed three of its leading characteristics: religion, naturalness, and independence. Religion he declared to be a more potent factor in North Carolina than in any other State in the Union and he eulogized the Scotch-Irish and German strains which were responsible for it.

In speaking of the second quality—naturalness—Mr. Daniels said it was the most prominent of the three. The true North Carolinian had no liking for frills. He barred them from every part of his life, politics, religion, government, and even his clothes. "It took all the love for the University I had," Mr. Daniels humorously declared, "for me to forgive the faculty for wearing caps and gowns" at University functions.

Independence was to be seen all through the history of the State and was typically exemplified in the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. In seeking a cause for these qualities, Mr. Daniels found that they'd did not arise out of the fact that in its early life the State was isolated from the centers of progress, but out of the innate strength of the people and of the straightforward power wrapped up in the very warp and woof of the true North Carolinian. The three great North Carolinians in whom these characteristics were most perfectly incarnated were Macon, Vance, and Aycock.

At the conclusion of the address Acting Dean Stacy read, while the audience stood, the list of the alumni who had died since last University Day. The quartette sang "Integer Vitæ," and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Homer Starr. In the afternoon from four to six Acting President and Mrs. Graham gave Secretary Daniels, the faculty, and visitors a delightful reception.

Carl Winter's Universitätsbuchhandlung, Heidelberg, issued in October, a book by Dr. John Manning Booker, associate professor of English in the University, that will prove of inestimable value to students of the early period of English literature. The title of Dr. Booker's publication is A Middle English Bibliography. Under the head of every manuscript and monument of the 12, 13 and 14 centuries, exclusive of the works of Wyeliff, Gower, Chaucer, and the documents in the London dialect, are listed the opinions of all the scholars, who have discussed these matters, upon the date, dialect, and source of these manuscripts and monuments.

MID-SEASON FOOTBALL

In Five Hard Struggles the 'Varsity Shows Fine Fighting Grit

CAROLINA 7, DAVIDSON 0

Carolina defeated Davidson October the eleventh in Greensboro by the score of 7 to 0. The line did not exhibit great strength, the backfield failed to show class, and the team was poorly generated. An exchange of punts put Carolina in a threatening position at the end of the third quarter. From this point of advantage in the fourth quarter a forward pass to Tayloe and a plunge by Fuller put the ball across the line. Tandy kicked goal. The all-round aggressive play of Ramsey and the punting of Foust were the redeeming points of Carolina's play.

NORTH CAROLINA 13, SOUTH CAROLINA 3

The terrific Backfield of Heyward and Von Kohnitz failed to materialize in the Palmetto-Tar Heel affray on the South Carolina gridiron October the eighteenth, and North Carolina won, 13 to 3. Homewood and Huske took the spectacular out of the end dashes and Ramsey and Tandy were everywhere blocking kicks or breaking up embryonic plays. In the first quarter Ramsey blocked Von Kohnitz' punt and the Carolina backs in several rushes put the ball in striking distance for Lord's touchdown. The half ended without additional scoring. In the third quarter Ramsey again blocked a kick. Reid, Tayloe, and Fuller plunged up the field for the second touchdown. South Carolina's score was made possible when Tayloe's fumble put the ball in position for Von Kohnitz' kick from placement.

In the last quarter the fresh men sent in for South Carolina came near playing the 'Varsity off its feet.

V. P. I. 14, CAROLINA 7

The high cost of living is a tender thing compared to the high price of fumbles. As the net value of fumbles went up Carolina went down before V. P. I. in Winston, October the twenty-fifth in a way that would break your heart. Pick and Legge turned Carolina's fumbles into V. P. I.'s touchdowns. Fuller fumbled, Tayloe fumbled, Allen fumbled and Reid fumbled. Against the disheartening power of these fumbles the Carolina team girded up its loins in the fourth quarter to snatch victory out of the very jaws of fumbles. Down the field they ploughed and charged, Fuller goes over the goal-line—fumbles—but Ramsey recovered and saved the touchdown which had been made right valiantly. With their common will set for another score Carolina went fiercely across the field again. But time was called before they could overcome the loss incident to V. P. I.'s punt.

Tayloe and Tandy played a great game for Carolina. Foust punted strongly in the face of the wind.

GEORGIA 19, CAROLINA 6

Georgia found Carolina a more stubborn fighter than the score indicates in the game November the first in Athens, Georgia. It was an affair of too much McWhorter who is considered the greatest individual football player in the lower South. The muchness of Tayloe did not have its chance until the last quarter and Carolina found out too late that it had been a case of not enough Tayloe.

As both teams were weak on defence and strong on offence Carolina made a strategic mistake in deliberately playing defence in the first half. In the last quarter Carolina kept Georgia fighting closely under the goal posts. Allen aggressively marshalled Tayloe, Fuller, and R. Burnett and sent them hammering through the Georgia defence. With the ball on the four yard line, second down, Burnett fumbled and Georgia punted out of danger. Again Carolina marched down the field with Tayloe to the fore and Allen went across for a touchdown. Time put a stop to another chance.

WASHINGTON AND LEE 14, CAROLINA 0

On a field drenched with rain and churned to mud, Carolina, out-weighed nine pounds to the man, doggedly lost to Washington and Lee at Lynchburg on November 8th. After two touchdowns for Washington and Lee, Carolina rallied splendidly and was on her opponents' 11-yard line and still going strongly when the game was stopped on account of darkness with five minutes still to play. Carolina protested without avail.

Summary—Touchdowns: Young 2; goals from touchdowns: Miller 2. Time of quarters 15 minutes. Referee, Randolph (Virginia). Umpire, Scudder and Brown. Headlinesman, (Hodgson (V. P. I.). Attendance, 1200.

ON TO RICHMOND

The annual football game between Carolina and Virginia on November 27th, will be played on the New Broad Street Park. The New Park has a seating capacity of 10,000 and is said to be a much better gridiron than the old park.

Manager Drew and Graduate Manager McLendon will secure reserved seat tickets for the North Carolina bleachers and will have them on sale at least ten days before the game. Alumni and others wishing tickets in the North Carolina bleachers should place their orders with Manager Frank Drew or Graduate Manager L. P. McLendon so that the tickets can be secured before reaching Richmond.

The reserved seat tickets will be placed on general sale in Richmond and it will be hard for the Carolina alumni and friends to secure tickets in the Carolina bleachers unless they are purchased before reaching Richmond. It is hoped that all the North Carolina people will secure their tickets to the Carolina bleachers so that they can all be together. The reserved seats will be sold for $1.50 each. No tickets will be mailed unless the letter is accompanied by a check or the money.

It is not definitely decided where the Carolina headquarters will be in Richmond but will probably be at the Richmond Hotel as last year. The new Murphy Hotel has put in a bid for the headquarters. Both of these hotels are located near the center of the city and will be convenient to the park and other places of interest.

OTHER ATHLETIC NOTES

It is a noteworthy fact that there are in the student body four men who have shown real class in professional baseball circles. Raymond Lee, '11, now a member of the second year law class, was premier pitcher of the Carolina league last season. J. A. Rousseen, second year law student, pitched remarkable ball for Belmont College, besting the Charlotte leaguers. In the summer season he was a king among the bush leagues. Klutz was not only a football sensation but was also the speed demon of the Eastern Carolina circuit several seasons ago. "Shag" Thompson, a member of the Junior class, was the first choice for left field on the All-State League team. Thompson is now numbered in the list of Connie Mack's precious possessions. Of course, under Carolina's requirements, these men are all ineligible for the Varsity. It is a fine thing to see these splendid athletes on the jump first of all for an education at a centre where their bona fide-ness of itself does not admit them to representation on the athletic teams.

Systems may come and go, coaches may rise and fall, but it is the purpose of this University, unmarred by failures here and there, to have such eligibility rules and such amateur spirit as will keep the channels of athletic opportunity open for the development of the general run of men natural to the life of the campus.

To take the place of the cancelled game with A. & M., Carolina and Wake Forest cross punts in Durham November the fifteenth. This is the last game before the game with Virginia, Thanksgiving day, in Richmond.

Virginia 34, Vanderbilt 0.

Virginia 13, Georgia 6.

Georgia 19, Carolina 6.

Trenhard, Wilson and Pendleton have nothing to say but are sawing wood.

Three men on the Varsity team were disqualified on account of deficiencies in studies, Boshamer, Andrews, and McCall. Gooch's residence as a student has not yet qualified him under the residence rule.

Eight of the Varsity players are men who either were on the Varsity last year or were members of the scrub and class teams.

In the first game of the interclass series the Juniors defeated the Seniors in a highly exciting game by the score of 9 to 7. The playing of Hatcher, Knowles, and Darden featured for the Seniors; and Nance, Wooleott, and Fitzgerald for the Juniors.

With the score 6 to 0 against them the Raleigh High School defeated the Freshmen in the last two seconds of play. MacDonald got away with a forward pass and Bowen went over for a touchdown. Raleigh kicked goal, making the score 7 to 6.

Guy Phillips, '13, has charge of the Raleigh squad, who are making a confident bid for the state championship.

The high school football championship of the State will be between Raleigh, Goldsboro, and Wilmington. So it seems.

The two strongest contenders will play a post season game on the Carolina gridiron for the championship.

The class teams are having their day in a blaze of glory. Klutts's squads of Freshmen and Sophomores are mopping up the earth with all comers. The Freshmen ran away with Greensboro to the speed of 31 to 0 and with Goldsboro to the amount of twenty points.

Hoffman, left half for 1917, gives promise of developing into the brilliant back that Carolina has been longing for these several years. He is the High Point school lad who was burning up the interseholastic cinder path last spring.

The Sophomores outpointed Warrenton 31 to 0. Fore, Huske, and Hoover dashed through the line and about the field at will.

Blake Applwhite, ex-'14, Varsity end and back for three years, is coaching the Warrenton squad and is working hard to whip the crude material into a more efficient machine.

De Witt Klutts, one of the best ends that Davidson has contributed to the South Atlantic galaxy, is a medial student of the University. Ineligible for the Varsity, he is doing splendid work for the future Varsities by coaching the Freshman and Sophomore elevens. His work is a most valuable part of the Carolina system that Trenhard, Pendleton, and Wilson are establishing here.

SIGMA CHI REVIVED

The Alpha Tau Chapter of the Sigma Chi Fraternity was revived at the University Tuesday and Wednesday, October 21 and 22, after a period of inactivity of thirteen years. The installation ceremonies were conducted by Rev. Wm. B. Ricks, '92, of Nashville, Tenn., assisted by the Beta Lambda chapter at Trinity College.

The candidates initiated are B. F. Aycock, K. B. Bailey, D. L. Bell, W. H. Childs, D. B. Darden, W. C. Dowd, Jr., C. W. Eley, C. E. Ervin, W. P. Fuller, W. C. George, H. V. Johnson, A. B. Greenwood, W. L. Jeffries, C. L. Johnston, Jno. Lasley, Jr., C. D. Lee, T. B. McCall, Jno. McElver, G. B. Mason and B. B. Sears, four of whom are alumni of the University. The chapter has one affiliate, R. B. McKnight, of Zeta Chapter, Washington and Lee University. Dr. J. F. Royster, of the department of English, is also Sigma Chi.

THE COUNTY CLUBS BEGIN SURVEYS

Prof. E. C. Branson Outlines Plan of "Know Your County" Investigations

On October 2nd, Prof. E. C. Branson, of the State Normal School of Athens, Ga., as the guest of the Bureau of Extension of the University of North Carolina, addressed the students on what has recently become known as "The Georgia Club," his address on that evening being an introduction to a series of round table talks which he conducted for four days with the County Clubs of the University.

The theme which Prof. Branson constantly stressed was the supreme importance of University students knowing the economic and social conditions of their home counties and home State, with a view to devoting themselves to their amelioration and improvement.

Taking the group of students composing the Johnston County Club, Prof. Branson made a tentative economic survey of the county, and indicated the method by which the students could bring it to completion. In making the outline he made use of census bulletins on population, agriculture, manufacturing, religious organizations; educational reports from the State High School Inspector and Superintendent of Public Instruction; financial reports from the State Auditor, Treasurer, and Corporation Commission; bulletins from the State Boards of Health and Agriculture; soil surveys and maps from the State and National Geological Surveys, and such other statistical and descriptive material as had been assembled by the Library for this special purpose.

At the end of the four day's work the Johnston County survey was well under way, the members of the various clubs had observed the method of investigation, and several members of the faculty who are North Carolinians, had undertaken to aid the students from their counties in the making of local studies.

The investigations started, if the plans of Professor Branson are followed, will continue well on through the year. In addition to the students at the University, resident members of the clubs at home will be engaged in the work. After the surveys have been roughly completed they will be checked up by the resident members of the club and the members of the faculty directing the investigations. When they are in final form they will be given to the local county paper for publication. There they will appear in plain, simple narrative so that they may carry information to every inhabitant of the county.

The importance of the work is immediately apparent. If properly carried out it will give an accurate survey of conditions in North Carolina on which methods of procedure in agriculture, in social betterment work, and in general State legislation can be safely based. In addition to that it will send back to the counties of North Carolina future citizens who will know local conditions first hand, and who, on account of their knowledge and aroused pride and interest, will devote themselves to the constructive up-building of their home communities.

FURTHER EXTENSION OF THE CAMPUS

"Extension Lectures for North Carolina Communities," and "Correspondence Courses" are the titles of Extension Bulletins 3 and 4 which have just been mailed in large editions throughout the State. In issuing these publications the University shows clearly that it is seriously in earnest in its efforts to carry its benefits to every section of the State and gives in detail the plan which it will follow in doing this.

One hundred lectures are offered by twenty-three members of the faculty. They cover a wide range of subjects and are suited to the varying needs of the State. The only cost involved is that the traveling expenses of the lecturers are to be met by the organization for which the lectures are made.

Correspondence courses in the following subjects are offered to anyone in the State: Economics, Education, English, German, History, Latin, Mathematics, and Rural School Development.

The work of the Correspondence Division will be under the immediate direction of the School of Education, with Dean M. C. S. Noble as Director; and the individual courses will be given by the following members of the faculty: Economics, Professor Raper; Education, Professors Noble and Williams; English, Professors Graham and Royster and Mr. Sneath; German, Professor Toy; History, Professor Hamilton; Latin, Professor Howe; Mathematics, Professors Noble and Henderson.

A fee of $2.00 per course will be charged. Each course will consist of 32 weeks' work which for convenience may be divided into half courses.

At the business meeting of the Philological Club in October the following officers were elected: Dr. George Howe, president; Dr. O. P. Rhyne, vice-president; Mr. E. F. Parker, secretary and treasurer; and Drs. J. F. Royster, L. R. Wilson, and W. M. Dey, editors of Studies in Philology.

MAJOR E. J. HALE, MINISTER TO COSTA RICA

In naming Major Edward Joseph Hale, of Fayetteville, N. C., as minister to Costa Rica, President Wilson bestowed an honor most worthily, and indirectly paid a highly appreciated compliment to the University; for Major Hale has demonstrated through splendid service to the State and nation his rare fitness for the post to which has been assigned and in 1860 was class Valedictorian at the University. In 1910 he received the additional honor of the LL. D. from his alma mater.

Major Hale's service to North Carolina has been of the significantly constructive order. As editor of the Fayetteville Observer he has profoundly influenced the thinking of the Cape Fear section, and as a strong, forward-looking leader he has been a central figure in proposing and bringing about the canalization of the Cape Fear River from Wilmington to Fayetteville. The development of an inland waterways system affecting the entire tidewater section of the State has long been a dream of his which he has helped make come true.

In State and national polities Major Hale's part has been significant. In 1884, the year of the first great Democratic victory, he was the author of the tariff plank in the North Carolina Democratic platform; in 1896 he was chairman of the State Democratic platform committee, and since 1884 he has five times been a delegate-at-large from North Carolina to national Democratic conventions.

As a representative of the national government in the diplomatic field, Major Hale first saw service in 1885 at which time he was sent by President Cleveland to Manchester, England, as Consul. In 1893 he was offered the Mission to Turkey, which he declined. Later he was recommended by Secretary of State Gresham as Minister to Russia, but did not allow his name to be considered.

On Friday night, August 1st, 1913, the citizens of Fayetteville tendered their honored fellow townsmen a farewell banquet at which Major John Underwood, Senator Q. K. nimocks, and Chief Justice Walter Clark made felicitous speeches. Secretary of State Bryan, a life-long friend of Major Hale's and an invited guest, was detained in Washington on account of complications in the Mexican situation.

LEONARD CHARLES VAN NOPPEN

Leonard Charles Van Noppen, the first appointee to the Queen Wilhelmina lectureship, was born in Holland in 1868, and came to America with his parents in childhood. He was graduated A. B., 1890, at Guilford College, N. C., and B. Litt. at the University of North Carolina, 1892; took his A. M. at Haverford College, Pa., 1893; studied law at the University of North Carolina and was admitted to the bar in 1894. He studied Dutch literature in Holland in 1895 and 1896, during which time he made a translation of Vondel's "Lucifer" into English verse in the meters of the original. In 1898 the "Lucifer" was published and received much notice, as not only the first English version of Vondel, but as the first translation into the English language of a Dutch poetical classic. Subsequently, for four years, he lectured during the winter in America and during the summer continued his studies in Holland. Three courses of lectures on Dutch literature were delivered

CLIPPINGS FROM THE PRESS

A MOVE FULL OF PROMISE

The whole State has a particular interest in a part of the address which Acting President E. K. Graham, of the University, made on the occasion of the celebration of University Day Saturday at the University on the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the beginning of that institution. We refer to that portion of his remarks which dealt with the recently inaugurated University extension work.

University extension work will be welcomed by the people of the State. It will be good for the people and good for the University. Education is a vital need, but it is impossible for a large element of the population to get to the customary sources of education. This element has not gone, of course, without enlightening and uplifting influences. It has had the press and the pulpit and the example and influence and stimulation of educated men in the community and these have all been powerful factors in the elevation and uplifting of the people. But the University has been to a large proportion of the people something apart except for its indirect influence. Now it is to be brought into direct touch with the people at large. Instead of the people having to go to the University for inspiration and incentive that it affords, it will come to those who can't go to it.

The whole State is interested in the new departure at the University and is looking forward to a happier and a more efficient population as a result of its inauguration. Every worthy cause in the State, every movement for a stronger, better commonwealth and for a population more able to cope with and conquer the problems of the day as they shall arise will be aided and strengthened by the extension work of the University.—News and Observer, October 12.

"THE WHITEST PLACE"

"It's the 'whitest' place on earth!"

That is the high praise bestowed on the University of North Carolina by Dr. Edwin Mims, of Vanderbilt University in a speech in Charlotte on Saturday night.

Dr. Mims is greatly missed in North Carolina. A professor at Trinity College for many years, and at the University for two years, he gave abundantly of his rare enthusiasm and scholarship to every cause of education, culture and religion in the State. The spirit of a community is after all the deepest thing about it, and the University may well be proud of such a tribute from such a source. "It is one of the joys of my life," said Dr. Mims, "to have lived in an atmosphere such as that at Chapel Hill for two years."—News and Observer, October 14.

A UNIVERSITY FOR THE PEOPLE

One of the most auspicious events in connection with the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the University of North Carolina is the announcement of plans with regard to the extension work, the ultimate aim of which is to make this institution to a greater and greater extent the people's university, and not the university of a fortunate few.—Greensboro Daily News, October 14.

THE COLLEGE LITERARY SOCIETY

If the college literary society everywhere occupied the important place in student life that it does at Chapel Hill, the educated youth of the country would be much better fitted for the duties of citizenship than they are now.

The literary society is too valuable an auxiliary of the college to be allowed to decay. It has been the only established American school of training in the fine art of public speaking. It has endowed thousands with the gift of public speech that made them in private capacity forces for the public good. It has been the practical laboratory for the science of reasoning.

Men like Secretary of State Bryan and President Wilson are deeply indebted to the college literary societies in which they first discussed public issues, and they acknowledge the obligation gladly.—Richmond Times-Dispatch, October 14.

SHOULD BE FREELY USED

There is one phase of educational work in North Carolina which should be highly commended and freely used. It is the Bureau of Extension of the State University. The Municipal and Legislative Reference Division of this work is of special interest in view of the present session of the General Assembly.

Until a legislative reference library shall be established in connection with the General Assembly, as has been done in a number of States, the extension work of the University will, to a great extent, supply the need; and if developed sufficiently, may avoid the establishment of a separate department.—State Journal, October 10.

THE JOHNSTON COUNTY CLUB

The twenty-three young men in the Johnston County Club furnished far more inspiration for their leader than he conveyed to them during the four days of his work alongside them.

Their studies and final report upon the economic and social life of their county will carry them well through the year.

They are pioneers in this work in North Carolina. They are blazing a trail, and they will do it with distinguished credit to themselves, and great benefit to their home county in the end.—E. C. Braxson in the Home and Farmstead, October 19.

DR. EDWIN A. ALDERMAN

The following letter was read at the opening exercises of the 89th session of the University of Virginia, on September 25th:

“MY DEAR MR. DEAN:

“I send through you, to my colleagues and to the students of the University for the session of 1913-14 my undiminished faith and my love and good wishes.

“I comfort myself with the belief that they all understand where my heart is and know how I am striving to come back to them. My purpose is to be with them before the New Year, and in that interval I shall watch with vivid interest all of their doings from the tickets they make to the touchdowns they score. This is my tenth anniversary at Virginia, and I am hoping that I may be able to celebrate it by giving myself with renewed strength to the service of the University.

“To the old students whom I know and whom I think of as my friends, I beg you will give my greetings and tell them that I expect every one of them to play the man at Virginia this year. To the host of new men whom, unhappily, I do not know save as a class, my sympathy and interest flow like a stream.

“I pray that they may bear themselves proudly in this, their greatest adventure and may live to bless the day and the influence that enrolled them forever among the sons of the University of Virginia.

“Faithfully yours,

“EDWIN A. ALDERMAN.”

A STRENUOUS DAY

Dr. W. D. Weatherford, of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. spent a strenuous day in Chapel Hill October the sixth. At the chapel period he made a forceful address on “Heroism in Men.” Immediately after Chapel he met with Chairman H. S. Willis and his committee of eight workers in three negro Sunday schools and the weekday night school. After dinner he went over the rural work with Fuller’s eighteen neighborhood workers. At three-thirty the advisory board met with Dr. Weatherford in an interested discussion of several policies in the management of the Association. A half an hour before supper House’s committee on the Barnett fund had a helpful conference with him.

At eight o’clock Dr. Weatherford delivered a very forceful address to the student body on the social and economic conditions of China. He had recently travelled through the new republic in the interest of the student movement and his message was vigorously alive with the religious needs of the millions there. The students were especially interested in his references to their representative in China, Eugene E. Barnett, who is Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in the great student centre at Hangchow, China. The student body, in response to a room-to-room canvas subscribed nearly four hundred dollars to the support of Barnett this year. After his address Dr. Weatherford met with about twenty-five of Chairman Bonshall’s Bible Study leaders and twelve men of the cabinet and ended his day of intense activity by giving a characteristically vigorous punch to their important work on the campus.

The Y. M. C. A. lined up with the County Club movement to study county conditions in the State by offering a six weeks' course in the study of the negro. Prof. E. C. Branson stayed over a half of a day at the price of a broken night ride to Atlanta in order to present the subject of negro study to University students. A hundred men are attending the weekly discussions which are being led by Prof. Staey, Dr. MacNider, Dr. Raper, Dr. Chase, and others.

NEW INSTRUCTORS

New appointments made by the Trustees not previously mentioned in THE REVIEW have been as follows: Dr. James B. Bullitt, Professor of Pathology, and W. W. Rankin, Instructor in Mathematics.

Dr. Bullitt is a graduate of Washington and Lee University, studied medicine at the University of Virginia, and has been Professor of Anatomy, Pathology, and Bacteriology at the University of Mississippi. He succeeds Dr. W. H. Brown in the Medical School as Professor of Anatomy.

W. W. Rankin graduated from the A. & M. College, at Raleigh, and received his degree from the University last year. He succeeds Mr. T. R. Eagles who has gone to Howard College, of Birmingham, Ala.

NEW COMMITTEES

New committees appointed by Acting President Graham at the opening of the year are as follows:

Grounds and Buildings—Professors Coker, Howe, and Cobb.

Chapel Exercises—Professors Patterson, Staey, and Bell.

University Publications—Professors Royster, Hamilton, L. R. Wilson, Coker, and Walker.

It is hoped that by means of these committees careful study may be given to the beautifying of the campus, interest in Chapel exercises may be quickened, and the publication and distribution of University publications may be more thoroughly organized. The idea prompting the appointing of the committees is one which looks to constructive development within the campus and without.

The following men have been initiated by the Junior Orders:

Gorgon's Head—M. H. Meeks, Jr., Kenneth Claiborne Royall, W. E. Thompson, Paul Arch Bennett, Fred C. Manning, Austin H. Carr, and G. A. Mcbane, Jr.

Gimghouls—E. J. Lilly, Jr., Claiborne T. S. Smith, Carl D. Taylor, and David A. Bigger.

Good roads days, November 5 and 6, were splendidly participated in by the faculty and student body, with the net result that more than 300 men volunteered to work on main street and many contributions were made to the town treasury for wagons and gravel to continue the work begun. The University's work was but a part of a united movement on the part of all the village for better streets and a more attractive town.

By provision of the will of Dr. Bennett Wood Green, the University of Virginia has recently come into the possession of an estate amounting approximately to one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Of this amount twenty-four thousand dollars is to be set aside for scholarships in the Medical School. The income from the remainder is to be devoted to the development of the University Library. In addition to the bequest Dr. Green's library also goes to the Library of the Medical School. Dr. Green was a member of the class of 1855.

Dr. Archibald Henderson spent a part of the week October 20-25 in Kentucky and Ohio lecturing. On the nights of the 23rd and 24th he delivered addresses before the Ohio Valley Historical Association on the subjects "The Beginnings of American Expansion," and "The Pioneers of North Carolina in the Mirror of their Contemporaries." On the evening of the 22nd he spoke before the Woman's Club of Cincinnati on "The Modern Drama." Dr. Henderson was also a contributor to the October number of the Bulletin of Bibliography, having prepared an extended list of works about the writings of the dramatist Schnitzler.

The office formerly occupied by the Registrar in the Alumni Building has been given to the Committee on Alumni Organization and to THE REVIEW. The Registrar's office has been moved to the southwest corner of the same building.

at Columbia University in 1899, 1900 and 1901, and courses were given at the Lowell Institute in Boston, and at the Brooklyn Institute, besides many single lectures elsewhere. Mr. Van Noppen has been a frequent contributor to the magazines. In recognition of his services to Dutch literature he has been made a permanent member of the oldest literary society of the Netherlands, the Maatschappij der Nederlandsche Letterkunde of Leiden.—Columbia University Quarterly, September, 1913.

THE ALUMNI

W. S. BERNARD, '00, Alumni Editor

It is the purpose of this department not only to publish all timely facts of interest about alumni—changes of residence and occupation, marriages, deaths, meetings, achievements, etc., but also to trace alumni of whom the University and their classmates have no record since their leaving college, thus bringing the class histories up to date. Therefore items of information are solicited from all alumni and their friends but especially are the secretaries of the associations and the secretaries of the classes requested to keep the editor informed. Notes on a few alumni in each city or county and class contributed every month will be greatly appreciated.

ASHEVILLE

The annual meeting of the Buncombe County Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina was held the afternoon of the eleventh at the office of Bourne, Parker and Morrison, and was largely attended. President J. C. Martin presided, and Secretary L. M. Bourne read letters from T. G. Trenchard, head coach at the University, suggesting methods whereby the local association can be of great help to those in charge of athletics at the University. A determination to do everything in their power along this line was reflected in the expressions of the members.

A committee to solicit subscriptions was appointed, composed of L. M. Bourne, chairman; Robert R. Reynolds, and J. E. Swain.

It was decided not to assess any dues, but to trust to voluntary contributions to keep the local association going financially.

Judge J. D. Murphy was delegated to send a telegram of greetings and congratulations on behalf of the association. The eleventh was celebrated as "University Day," because of the fact October 12, which is the regular festival, falls on Sunday this year.

A committee composed of R. R. Reynolds, Marcus, Edwin, and Allen T. Morrison, was appointed to arrange for a banquet on behalf of the local association, which will be held between now and January 1. The committee will see what can be done along other lines to increase the interest among the alumni.

Julius C. Martin was re-elected president for the coming year and L. M. Bourne was again chosen secretary.

CHARLOTTE

A message which was brimming over with enthusiasm and hope was delivered last night to the Mecklenburg County Association of Alumni of the University of North Carolina by Dr. Charles Staples Mangum, guest of honor at the annual University Day banquet. The affair was given on the top floor of the Piedmont building and was attended by 42 persons. President Brent Skinner Drane was toastmaster. Dr. Edwin Mims, of the faculty of Vanderbilt University, was also a guest of honor, and spoke briefly, but happily, before leaving to fill his lecture engagement at Hanna Hall. The banquet began at 7:30 and lasted until 11.

Dr. Mangum in his speech commented on the fact that out of a membership of over 200 in Mecklenburg only 42 alumni were present. "I tell you frankly that you do not know anything at all about what is going on down at Chapel Hill," he said. "The only thing you know about is athletics, and the reason is that that is the only thing you have taken the trouble to inform yourselves about. To us who are down there on the ground doing the work athletics is a minor matter. We know that the University stands for greater and grander things. Yet to you on the outside it looks the biggest."

Doctor Mangum declared that the alumni ought to manifest the same interest in other phases of the institution's life that they have shown in athletics. They have "butted into" the latter and assumed charge, found no opposition and would be received in the same spirit in other departments. The one thing that the faculty insisted on retaining is the power to say who shall and shall not represent the University on its athletic teams. "We have got a system of rules based on the highest ethical principles, and we are going to enforce them whether you like it or not," said Doctor Mangum. "We'd rather be defeated while fighting for principle than to win games and have to apologize for the manner in which we won them."

While on the subject of athletics Doctor Mangum warned his hearers not to expect a winning team this year, but said the foundation was being laid as it has never been laid before for winning teams hereafter. "There are two ways in which to build up a team," he said. "One is to scour around and beat the bushes to secure stars from one place or another, who have played the game at other colleges far distant, and in that way get a team that will wipe up everything. We are opposed to any such system. The material is right here in North Carolina and we propose to develop it. We don't want men to come in from other places and win our games for us. We may not win this year; I'd advise you to keep your money in your pockets."

Doctor Mangum declared that the growth of the University along all lines is astounding and incomprehensible even to those who are "on the job" all the time. It is growing in number of students, in the height of its standards, the strength of its influence. It is getting to be really a University in more than name." * * *

Doctor Mims, who spoke next, paid an eloquent tribute to the University. "I'll say this for it," he said, "it's the whitest place on earth." He said that frequently when a man leaves an institution there is a feeling of "sorenness" toward him on the part of the college, but declared that the attitude of the faculty, students and alumni of the University toward him, as often manifested, "has been one of the finest revelations of human nature I have ever seen." He said it was one of the joys of his life that he should have lived for two years in such an atmosphere as that at Chapel Hill. "There is no good thing that I do not covet for the University." He said the manner in which members and friends of the institution rallied at last year's crisis was an exhibition of grit and consecration rarely equalled. "A university that can rise to an emergency like that is an institution that has a future. You cannot dream what the University of North Carolina will be even 25 years hence."

Mr. Paul C. Whitlock, secretary of the Association, gave a review of its work during the past year—a review which was humorous by reason of the paucity of material.

Mr. George Stephens of the class of 1860, spoke on "The Work of the General Association of the Alumni and the New Athletic Coaching System." He told of the progress that has been made by the establishing of the alumni system of coaching, but added that a winning team should not be expected until 1915, at the end of the three-year contract with Coach Trenchard. Mr. Stephens said that not a dollar of the money raised by the alumni was being spent in any way not in accord with the highest ethical principles as applied to pure athletics.

Mr. Harold S. Hall, who has seen two games, told "How the Football Team Looks in Action This Fall." He predicted a winning team in 1914 and said that the team even this fall "looks good" and is one that alumni can be proud of.

Mr. C. W. Tillett, Jr., gave a toast "To the College of Liberal Arts," and read the address of Acting President Graham. Mr. Thaddens A. Adams spoke on "The School of Law," and Mr. Marsh Stewart, a graduate, discussed "The School of Pharmacy." Messrs. W. A. Reynolds and Col. W. R. Henry and J. E. Little gave reminiscences. All these speeches were interesting.

Before adjournment, officers were elected as follows: President, Mr. C. W. Tillett, Jr.; vice-president, Mr. P. C. Whitlock; secretary-treasurer, Mr. N. R. Graham.—Charlotte Observer.

CHERRYVILLE

On October 11, the Gaston County Alumni of the University held a meeting in Cherryville in the office of H. A. Toms, Esq., and organized into an association. The following alumni were present: Rev. W. T. Usry, Dr. M. E. Hoffman, H. C. Sisk, D. E. Deland, J. C. Nixon, Ivy Willis, J. H. Workman, C. L. Eaker, H. A. Jonas.

Rev. W. T. Usry was elected chairman, and Dr. M. E. Hoffman, secretary. After the business meeting an hour of social pleasure followed over a good supper and reminiscences of college days.

NEW YORK

About thirty of the University Alumni in New York City gathered at Healy's, Broadway and 66th Street, on Saturday night, October 11th, for the annual University Day celebration. It was by far the gayest and altogether the most successful meeting ever held by the New York Association. The joyful beef-steak dinner at Reisenweber's in 1911 had pointed the way to the escape from formality and boredom—which seem to be inseparable from the ordinary kind of dinner in the metropolis—and A. Marvin Carr, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, sought to duplicate the event of two years ago. But this year's was even better because of the larger attendance.

Upon arrival the Alumni found themselves in a rustic-looking room, the walls of which were formed by logs with the bark still on them. In one corner was a piano which was kept merrily at work by a skilful and tireless performer, who with the accompanying violinist, had been discovered by Don Richardson, the musical expert of the Association. To each diner was supplied a paper cap of many colors and fantastic design—a fez, or a turban, or an inverted man of war, or an aeroplane, or something else equally striking. A calico apron, of the very sort that a Chapel Hill negro cook might wear—if she wore any at all—completed the costume. And the apron was needed, for most of the eating was done with the fingers. Healy's prize beefsteak cook did his job over a fire on one side of the room, and the waiters circulated industriously with the slices of juicy steak laid on toast. The preliminary course of oysters served as an appetizer, and after that the alumni ate steak and more steak, until they could eat no more. Then they were ready for the talk.

A number of younger men, who are studying at Columbia, were present. Judge Augustus Van Wyck, who presided, taking notice of the fact that many newcomers were on hand, introduced the novelty of calling on each and every alumnus to rise and state his name, history in brief, occupation and present place of residence. This, said the Judge, would make everybody acquainted with everybody else. The resulting autobiographies, delivered in varying fashions and each reflecting personality of the subject, brought forth much good natured and hilarious banter. The thirty men, with their queer garb, were a lot of college boys again, forgetful of everything save the fun and the good-fellowship of the moment—and the pleasing consciousness of being well fed.

The Association was honored by the unexpected presence of General Julian S. Carr, who came as the guest of his son Marvin, and who was seated on Judge Van Wyck's right. Another visitor from "down home" was there too in the person of Ex-State Senator Albert S. Cox, who was in the city as a deputy to the Episcopal Convention. Mr. Cox found it difficult to convince some of the alumni that he did not come to New York as a delegate to the World's Series.

There was no speech-making. Brief talks were made by the Judge and Dr. Charles Baskerville. Dr. Baskerville urged that instead of merely having a dinner every year, the Association should develop a more business-like organization, and this received the approval of the company. Accordingly, a committee, consisting of Dr. Baskerville, A. Marvin Carr, Dr. Henry C. Cowles, Jr., Louis Graves, and Alfred W. Haywood, Jr., was appointed to recommend a plan for action. It was suggested that the plan include provision for subscription to THE ALUMNI REVIEW on a club basis, the annual dues including a subscription to THE REVIEW.

Present were Judge Van Wyck, General Julian S. Carr, George Gordon Battle, Holland Thompson, Isaac F. Harris, James A. Gwyn, Pleasant Daniel Gold, George B. Willis, Dr. Henry C. Cowles, Thomas Hill, Alfred W. Haywood, Jr., Don Richardson, T. Holt Haywood, Louis Graves, Albert S. Cox, Banks Holt Mebane, John Manning Battle, James Patterson, Wesley Harriss, Pynum Glenn, Z. V. Judd, Robert Van Wyck (son of Judge Van Wyck), A. Marvin Carr, L. T. Avery, Stowe Crouse, Dr. Stroud Jordan, J. T. Keel, E. C. McLean.

The meeting adjourned at 10:45—everybody sober and at peace with the world.

RALEIGH

The University of North Carolina Alumni Association of Wake County dispensed with the usual banquet this year and held a simple smoker on the evening of October 11 in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce.

The smoker opened with a short business meeting, President A. B. Andrews, Jr., presiding. The president read a communication from Z. V. Judd, former superintendent of the Wake County Schools, and then stated that the Wake County Association's scholarship at the University had been again awarded to Mr. Seymour Whiting; that Mr. Whiting was leading his class in scholarship, had won Phi Beta Kappa membership, and was making good on the track team. A communication was read from Mr. T. G. Trenchard, head-coach of the University, containing general and particular information as to athletics at the University.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are Mr. Frank M. Harper, President; Mr. Francis A. Cox, vice-president; and Mr. Joseph B. Cheshire, Secretary and Treasurer.

Mr. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, was the guest of honor of the evening. Introduced by President Andrews, he spoke briefly of the fine esprit de corps and high moral tone at the University observed in his visit there the same day. He said that the finest sight he ever saw was the 871 boys who faced him in the Memorial Hall that morning.

Judge A. W. Graham followed Secretary Daniels with a few hearty words. He spoke of the feeling of brotherhood and helpfulness which existed between alumni of the University, and said there was no office in North Carolina he could covet more than that of trustee of this institution.

Chief Justice Walter Clark referred to the days when the University was the equal of any northern institution and lamented the present disparity in numbers of students and material wealth between our University and such institutions as Harvard and Yale and California.

Hon. J. Crawford Biggs and Dr. B. F. McMillan, of Robeson, also made short talks.

The following members were present: A. B. Andrews, Jr., Frank M. Harper, Allen J. Barwick, Perrin Busbee, Dr. J. Martin Fleining, Joseph B. Cheshire, Jr., C. K. Burgess, J. C. Lockhart, James W. Cheshire, John H. Boushall, J. Crawford Biggs, Hon. Walter Clark, R. D. W. Connor, Hubert Haywood, Jr., Francis A. Cox, John B. Stromach, Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary U. S. Navy, W. Thomas Bost, Henry G. Turner, Clyde Donglass, C. E. McIntosh, E. C. Smith, Sr.

Members of the Legislature present: J. S. McNider, of Perquimans, Dr. B. F. McMillan, of Robeson, A. W. Graham, of Granville.

THE CLASSES

1856

"Although David Settle Patrick, Confederate veteran, is officially 'dead,' so far as the University of North Carolina is concerned, he became superintendent of one of the Municipal Scales of Fort Smith, Arkansas, a short while ago. When Mr. Patrick was sworn into office, T. S. Osborn, '84, a member of the Legislature, produced an University publication announcing the death of Patrick in 1890. Mr. Patrick was Professor of Greek in the University of North Carolina, 1890-'91."

1857

—Three survivors of the class of 1857 met in Clinton, N. C., in August, Col. Robert Bingham, B. F. Grady, and J. L.

Fire, supposedly originating from an X-ray machine, broke out in the physics lecture room of the Alumni Building Saturday night, November 8th, at 8 o'clock, damaging the building and apparatus to the amount of $1,000. But for the timely discovery made by students and the immediate response of the student body and fire department, the results would have been very disastrous. The damage was covered by insurance. It is supposed that some of the wires connected with the X-ray machine were short circuited and set fire to the woodwork on which the machine rested.

The Has-Beens and The Is-Nows

BUSINESS MEN are of two classes—the "HAS-BEENS" and the "IS NOWS". The "HAS-BEENS" are the antiques—the fellow who looks through the business telescope from the wrong end, whose vision is so limited he can't keep out of the way of the street cars nor the automobiles; in plain vernacular, he is asleep at the switch.

The "IS NOW" is the real thing: He is the fellow that "plays ball", the fellow who is alive to the main chance, who knows a good thing when he sees it, who always grasps an opportunity the moment it knocks.

HE IS A LIVE WIRE

It's the "IS NOWS" that we are making our life's business to serve; the "LIVE WIRES" that are doing things. Get in the boat. Be an "IS NOW"; be a "LIVE WIRE".

"Keeping in Front"

You fellows know what that means! We've been very successful in this regard with Fatima Cigarettes. By the way, these cigarettes were first sold in the college towns—and you agreed with us that they were good.

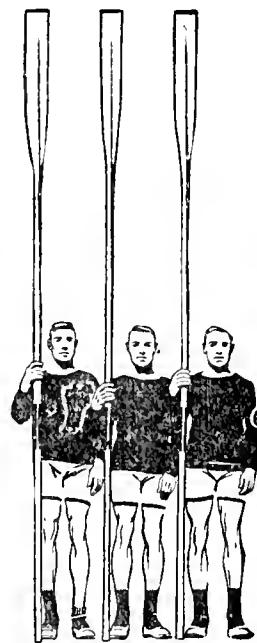

Then we put out for the big race, to make Fatimas of nation-wide reputation, and today more are sold than any other cigarette in this country.

No purer, or more carefully chosen tobacco grows than that in Fatimas. We purposely put them in a plain inexpensive wrapper—in this way we can afford quality tobacco, and twenty of the smokes for 15 cents.

Now your college crew is of utmost importance to you—so is a good cigarette, and it's your aim in life to keep Fatimas in the lead—right up to their good quality—right up to where you first found them, and will always find them.

Success fellows! You started this cigarette on its successful career—and you pull a strong oar all over this country.
